

Martin Momtschilow

Rechtsanwalt, Partner | Düsseldorf

Martin Momtschilow advises and represents large and medium-sized companies in all aspects of intellectual property matters. A main focus of his practice is patent infringement litigation in numerous technical fields, in particular telecommunications and information technology, software, electronics, mechanical engineering and medical technology. In addition to litigation in infringement and validity proceedings, his practice also includes out-of-court strategic advice and negotiations as well as contractual matters and advice on IP transactions.

Martin Momtschilow has many years of experience in the enforcement and defense of rights in complex litigation and time-critical preliminary injunction proceedings. In addition to representing clients in cross-border patent infringement proceedings, he has also conducted complex disputes in the fields of trademark and design law as well as the protection of industrial and trade secrets.
